"Raisin (my service dog) is my constant companion. Whether lying quietly beside me during a lecture, flying cross-country stowed under an airplane seat, or maintaining my safety at home, she makes my future seem very secure and bright."

The National Service Dog Center (NSDC) is a Web-based Delta Society program. The site provides information and resources for people with disabilities who are considering getting or who are currently partnered with a service dog.

The NSDC also provides online assistance to people with disabilities who have difficulties entering the buildings in which they work and other public places with service dogs.

The NSDC can be accessed through the Delta Society Web site at www.deltasociety.org.
